PINK DOMINOS AND SILK ATTIRE

Complimentary Ball to the Friday German Club.

The Social Event of the Season—The Ball Room Festooned With Pink Bunting. A Scene of Gaiety From Grand March to the Last Figure of the German. Who Were There and With Whom They Were.

The Pink Domino Ball at Hotel Roanoke last evening was an event long to be remembered. The members of the Friday German Club, in whose honor it was given by the ladies to whom courtesies have been extended the past winter, freely confess that their utmost efforts have been completely outdone. The splendid parlor was beautifully festooned in pink. The dominos were pink and the gentlemen had pink lemonade in the refreshment room. Even the properties were pink. Music was rendered by the Machine Works' orchestra, and from the grand opening march to the end of the last figure of the german all went smoothly. Beautiful gold whistles were presented to the leaders of the german, Mr. Philip Norvel and Mr. R. H. Hicks.

The reception committee were: Mrs. Allen Watts, Mrs. W. W. Coe, Mrs. S. W. Jamison, Mrs. R. H. Soule, Mrs. T. H. Bransford.

AMUSEMENTS.

Mabel Paige Matinee and Night.
The largest house of the week greeted Little Mabel Paige at the Academy last night. The counter-attraction of a pink german and the dampening effect of a heavy rain alone prevented the house from being packed. J. H. Thorne won warm applause for his excellent presentation of "Rip Van Winkle." Mabel Paige introduced her serpentine dance and several clever songs.

At the matinee to-day for the ladies and children "Little Lord Fauntleroy" will be given with Mabel Paige in the title role. It is a clever performance, and the admission to the whole house will be 25 cents. The performance will begin promptly at 2:30.

At night "Chick" will be given again in response to many requests. Between the second and third acts the Machine Works Orchestra will repeat the Intermezzo from Mascagni's "Cavalleria Rusticana," one of the most beautiful of modern compositions. No one has ever failed to hear it with delight.

Plays and Players.

The Chicago Opera House was crowded last night with an audience that enjoyed two and a half hours of genuine mirth. Fanny Rice is an old favorite among that large class of Chicago theatergoers who like an occasional evening of good, clean, laughable nonsense, with just enough of melody to keep the fun from becoming tiresome.

The program last night opened with that dainty operatic gem of Offenbach's called "The Little Broom Seller." There are but two characters in this—Lisbeth, a broom seller, rendered by Miss Rice, and Frischen, a peasant, by Frank Jones. It is a short and simple story of an Alsatian lad and lass who met in a distant country and fell in love. The wooing soon came to an end through the discovery that they were brother and sister. It subsequently developed, however, that the girl was an adopted child in the family, and they became lovers once more. It is very pretty and very tuneful, and makes an admirable forerunner of the carnival of hilarity that follows.

"A Jolly Surprise," which occupied the principal part of the evening, has been considerably changed since it was last seen here and the changes are mostly for the better. It makes no pretense of being a play and for this it deserves respect. It is described on the bills simply and honestly as a "non-sensical melange." There is just enough of a plot to create a number of comical situations and no more. David Bradbur, a convivially inclined individual with a weakness for femininity, is afflicted with a mother-in-law who is something of a terror. He has a friend, Charles Carroll, whose wife, Violet, left him on account of a letter she found in his pocket from Bradbur referring in a mysterious way to his (Carroll's) relations with "Lillian," who afterward turns out to be a yacht.

Violet decides to go on the stage, and the rehearsals of the company which she joins furnish an opportunity for several pleasing songs and much amusing variety business, chiefly by Miss Rice, who is a "whole show" herself. The company is almost entirely new and contains a number of clever people. Among these are Charles H. Bradshaw, who has the part of David Bradbur; B. McDonough as A. J. Hustle, actor, author and manager; Frank Jones, who sings well, and Carrie Birkle, who is exceedingly funny in the character of Mary, Mrs. Bradbur's maid.—Chicago Times.

VIRGINIA NOTES.

In military circles the principal subject of gossip is the re-election of Lieutenant Seay by the Flitz Lee Cavalry Troop, of Lynchburg. The case is rather an unprecedented one and speculation rises as to the final result. The consensus of opinion among the military people is that it is a very bad precedent, and they do not think the military board of examiners will recommend that the young man be re-commissioned. One well-known officer said that he did not think that an officer cashiered for disobedience ought to be re-elected to office. The officers of the regiment have not determined positively as to what action they will take in the matter. Lieutenant Seay will have to appear before the board of military examiners some time within the next sixty days for examination. Should the board take favorable action, it will be the governor's prerogative to commission him or not, as he pleases. Capt. Ingram, who referred the charges against Lieut. Seay, has prepared his resignation, which has been mailed to the governor.—Richmond State.

Frank W. Meade, who escaped from jail at Christiansburg on the 5th instant, was captured in Graham on Sunday evening. Meade was sentenced some time ago by the county court of Montgomery to serve six years in the penitentiary for bigamy. He came Saturday and stopped at a boarding house, saying he was looking for work. Sunday morning he attended church, and in the afternoon he was recognized by Sergeant Burton, who immediately arrested him. A reward of $25 was offered for him. He is the man who came from Pennsylvania to Radford, leaving a wife behind him, and married a lady of that place.

The third party leaders in Virginia are undecided as to the policy of advocating a railroad commission.

Mrs. Mary Champe Langhorne, wife of Mr. A. A. Langhorne, died yesterday morning at her home, in Lynchburg.

The Governor yesterday received a United States Treasury warrant for $5,441.75, being the balance due Virginia under the direct tax refund act for penalties, fines, etc.

A man supposed to be Charles Salvars was arrested in Winchester yesterday on suspicion of being connected with the murder of Policeman George Martin at Carlisle, Pa.

According to a decision of Judge Wright in the Baltimore city court, the subscribers to the capital stock of the Valley Land and Improvement Company of Virginia will be compelled to pay the full amount of their subscriptions. The company was incorporated in Page county, to develop the country about Luray. The subscribers paid from 20 to 60 per cent. on their subscriptions, but afterwards refused to pay the balance on the ground that subscriptions had been obtained by fraud and misrepresentation.

April has become of late years a notable month in Virginia history. On April 17th, 1861, the Virginia convention passed the ordinance of secession in Richmond; April 3rd, 1865, Richmond was evacuated by the Confederate forces; April 9th of the same year Lee surrendered to Grant at Appomattox; in the same month Governor Billy Smith and staff evacuated Richmond and reached Lynchburg; April 17, 1870, the capitol disaster occurred, killing sixty-five men and wounding 200 others; April 12th, the Southern governors met in Richmond to look after the interests of the South, and on the 17th the great naval review at Hampton Roads.—Lexington Gazette.

Mr. John T. Jordan, of Buena Vista, who was paralyzed on the 11th inst. died without regaining consciousness at 4:45 a. m. on the 13th. The funeral services took place at the residence of Capt. C. E. Jordan, in Buena Vista, the 14th at 10 o'clock a. m. The body will be brought to Lexington on the noon train and carried direct to the cemetery, where the interment will take place.

Ben. Birchfield was convicted of voluntary manslaughter in the county court at Covington Thursday and sentenced to serve two years in the penitentiary. He is one of the men charged with the murder of Meadows six months ago. Robert W. Hooper was found guilty of forgery and sentenced to two years in the penitentiary.

Supintendent Massey expects to call a meeting of the county and city superintendents during the session of the National department of superintendence, which meets in Richmond next February.

The board of education will begin to appoint superintendents of schools May 3rd. Applicants for appointment (or for reappointment) should send their applications and testimonials to the secretary of the board of education at Richmond on or before April 28th.

Old papers for the next week at 10 cents per hundred.

A SLAYER OF TIGERS.

Reputation an Englishman Has Made in Amoy, China.

Why Frank Leyburn's Name Is Famed in All Parts of the Celestial Empire—How He Exterminated a Big Beast.

Frank Leyburn is the hero of China—that is, he is one of the heroes, though only a tea buyer for the firm of Jardine & Co., in Amoy, for he is famous as a slayer of tigers and as such is talked of in all that part of the great empire. The tiger of China, he thinks, is not so dangerous as that of India, but it is fierce enough. Mr. Leyburn recently arrived in San Francisco on his way to London and gave some interesting details.

"With us," he said, "tiger hunting is a mere sport, just like deer stalking in America, but when a tiger gets a taste of human blood he at once becomes ferocious and is never satisfied with any other diet. They become transformed into what are known as man eaters. Such a one makes his lair near a village and waits his opportunity to seize a victim. Moonlight nights suit him best. At such a time he is extremely vigilant. He prowls about until he sees some belated straggler in the streets. This is an opportunity for which he has waited for hours, perhaps for days. There is the flash of a heavy body in the moonlight, a cry of terror, a brief struggle, and the man eater is off for his lair in the jungle bearing the helpless body of a human being in his massive jaws. Months later, it may be, the whitened bones are found in the dense undergrowth.

"One day two natives came to me at our place in Amoy, stating that a man had been carried off the night before from a neighboring village. This was just the opportunity I had been waiting for. Taking out a heavy express rifle which I had brought from London, I took the two natives to act as guides and started out. I had already learned something about the habits of the man eater and knew just how to go about it. From inquiry among the natives I ascertained the exact location of the lair of the tiger,

"AS HE WAS IN THE AIR I LET GO THE OTHER BARREL."

and for a small compensation I succeeded in securing the services of a coolie to guide me to the place.

"I had brought with me a bull's-eye lantern. Before night had set in fully I got everything in readiness and waited until it grew pitch dark. Having in the meantime located the exact position of the lair, I left my guide, who by this time was almost terror stricken, behind me, and on my hands and knees crept through the jungle. By the cautious use of my lantern I found the lair. Turning on the light, I was startled to discover the huge beast curled up and sound asleep. His head was resting on his paws and squarely facing me. As I prepared to level my rifle at him he stirred uneasily. Turning the light full upon him, he raised his head, but before he was thoroughly aroused I sent a ball from my rifle crashing through his brain. By good fortune I had struck him squarely between the eyes.

"There was a feast of rejoicing in the village when I returned with the skin. 'Just before I left China on my present trip I struck a man eater who was an old fellow and had a record of about twenty victims. I had with me a double-barreled rifle of large caliber. I found no difficulty in tracing him to his lair, but he gave me a narrow call before I succeeded in finishing him. The trouble was that when I found him he was awake and ferocious, apparently from the effects of hunger. I had shot so many that I thought nothing of it and gave my tiger one barrel out of my gun. Most unaccountably I missed him clean, and his eyes fairly blazed. 'Lashing the ground with his tail, he sprang toward me like a flash. As he was in the air I let go with the other barrel and struck him in the left shoulder, the heavy ball penetrating to his heart. He fell at my feet, and so close was he that before he died I could feel his hot breath upon me. It was the most narrow escape that I ever had. When measured, the tiger was found to be almost 12 feet in length, and his claws were 1½ inches in length. I had the latter mounted and distributed among my friends."

A Western Girl's Idea.

A very clever young western girl, who came to New York with the desire to work and make money, and who has heretofore failed in that attempt, has sent out cards to wealthy housekeepers to the effect that she will make contracts to sweep, dust and clean their apartments so many times a week for so much. In the advent of a sudden loss of servants she believes she will be able to take up a great many orders. "It is a genuine fact," says she, "that the general run of servants in New York are too saucy, ignorant and slovenly to know how to set a room to rights neatly and artistically as well. They are always breaking precious bric-a-brac, tearing exquisite silken picture scarfs and tidies, or scrubbing the dust and grime into elegant portieres. I believe some women ought to make a profession of house-cleaning."

A NOVEL set of shirt studs has been manufactured at Newcastle, England. The set consists of three studs connected by a strip of German silver. The center stud contains a watch three-sixteenths of an inch in diameter, which can be wound by turning the upper stud and set by turning the lower one.

SOME fashionable New York restaurants permit their customers to make their own tea. Every table is provided with a dainty teakettle, which the waiter sets to singing by lighting the spirit lamp beneath it. A lacquer caddy with several compartments offers a choice of brands of tea, out of which the customer chooses and brews his own cup.

ELECTRICITY IN EUROPE.

THERE are now about 9,000 telegraph bureaux in France.

Among the electrical heating devices recently patented are gridirons, muffs, a metal heater and a hat brim softening device.

IN the year 1890 the number of telegrams dispatched in England was 60,409,000; in France, 28,094,000; in Germany, 25,847,896; in Austria, 9,081,631; in Hungary, 4,464,277.

A NEW kind of telephone wire is being experimented with in Germany, consisting of an aluminium-bronze core with a copper-bronze envelope. It is said to have a low resistance, and to have great tensile strength.

THE central telegraph exchange at Paris, France, is simply a bureau of transmission, and neither directly receives nor distributes dispatches. It transmits 36,250 telegrams daily and furnishes employment to 500 men and 400 women.

THE POULTRY YARD.
